

I oppose the weakening of Indiana's telephone privacy law. It has, without question, given me greater peace of mind to know that when I answer telephone calls, I am less likely to be subjected to pleas for purchasing products and services. I do not wish to be called on the telephone about promotional issues by my bank, credit card companies, long distance carrier, or any other organization with which I have a business relationship. I urge the FCC to leave Indiana's Telephone Privacy Law intact.
